NEW QUESTION: 1A manufacturing company is growing exponentially and has secured funding to improve its IT infrastructure and ecommerce presence. The company's ecommerce platform consists of:
* Static assets primarily comprised of product images stored in Amazon S3.
* Amazon DynamoDB tables that store product information, user information, and order information.
* Web servers containing the application's front-end behind Elastic Load Balancers.
The company wants to set up a disaster recovery site in a separate Region. Which combination of actions should the solutions architect take to implement the new design while meeting all the requirements? (Select THREE.)
A. Enable Amazon S3 versioning on the source and destination buckets containing static assets to ensure there is a rollback version available in the event of data corruption.
B. Enable multi-Region targets on the Elastic Load Balancer and target Amazon EC2 instances in both Regions.
C. Enable Amazon CloudWatch and create CloudWatch alarms that route traffic to the disaster recovery site when application latency exceeds the desired threshold.
D. Enable Amazon S3 cross-Region replication on the buckets that contain static assets.
E. Enable DynamoDB global tables to achieve a multi-Region table replication.
F. Enable Amazon Route 53 health checks to determine if the primary site is down, and route traffic to the disaster recovery site if there is an issue.
