A. Configure the Open Web Interface for .NET.
B. Configure SAML 2.0.
C. Enable Multi-resource refresh tokens.
D. Enable WS-federation access tokens.
Answer: C
Explanation:
When using the Authorization Code Grant Flow, you can configure the client to call multiple resources. Typically, this would require a call to the authorization endpoint for each target service. To avoid multiple calls and multiple user consent prompts, and reduce the number of refresh tokens the client needs to cache, Azure Active Directory (Azure AD) has implemented multi-resource refresh tokens. This feature allows you to use a single refresh token to request access tokens for multiple resources. Reference: Azure, OAuth 2.0, Refresh Tokens for Multiple Resources
