(To answer, drag the appropriate code segments to the correct targets in the answer area. Each code segment may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.) Select and Place:Answer: Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Box 1: [ServiceContract]Each interface must have the ServiceContractAttribute applied to it and each operation must have the OperationContractAttribute attribute applied to it. If a method within an interface that has the ServiceContractAttribute attribute does not have the OperationContractAttribute attribute, that method is not exposed by the service.Note: When using attributes to annotate an interface, member, or class, you can drop the "Attribute" part from the attribute name. So ServiceContractAttribute becomes[ServiceContract] in C#.Box 2: [TransactionFlow(TransactionFlowOption.Mandatory.The service must have a transaction scope.Transactions must flow from the client to the server.Note: The TransactionFlow attribute specifies whether the operation supports transactions. There are three possible values for this attribute:*Mandatory : In order to call this operation, the client must create a transaction.* NotAllowed : The operation cannot participate in a transaction. This is the default value for this attribute.* Allowed : The operation will participate in a transaction if the client creates one.Box 3: [ServiceBehavior(TransactionTimeout = "00:00:30")]Define the ServiceBehavior for the interface. Use "00:00:30", not 30, to define that operations must have 30 seconds timeouts. Box 4: [OperationsBehaviour(TransactionScopeRequired=True)] We must decorate the Foo method with TransactionScopeRequired attribute.
