NEW QUESTION: 1 Your customer runs a 24/7 call center and has a policy stating that incidents that agent's solved by the end of an agent's shift should be moved out of that agent's inbox to be worked by another active agent. Which two actions will accomplish this? A. The agent reassigns each incident to another agent before they log off. B. The agent does a multi-edit update for all incidents in their inbox and changes the assigned field to full. C. Add a business rule that when an agent logs out, the Assigned field should be set to null for any unresolved incidents for that agent. D. Create a workspace rule that sets the Assigned field to null when an agent logs out. Answer: A, C Explanation: Incorrect: Not D: Use a business rule, not a workspace rule.

NEW QUESTION: 3 What is the appropriate role of the security analyst in the application system development or acquisition project? A. policeman B. control evaluator & consultant C. data owner D. application user Answer: B Explanation: The correct answer is "control evaluator & consultant". During any system development or acquisition, the security staff should evaluate security controls and advise (or consult) on the strengths and weaknesses with those responsible for making the final decisions on the project. The other answers are not correct because: policeman - It is never a good idea for the security staff to be placed into this type of role (though it is sometimes unavoidable). During system development or acquisition, there should be no need of anyone filling the role of policeman. Data owner - In this case, the data owner would be the person asking for the new system to manage, control, and secure information they are responsible for. While it is possible the security staff could also be the data owner for such a project if they happen to have responsibility for the information, it is also possible someone else would fill this role. Therefore, the best answer remains "control evaluator & consultant" application user - Again, it is possible this could be the security staff, but it could also be many other people or groups. So this is not the best answer. Reference: Official ISC2 Guide page: 555 - 560 All in One Third Edition page: 832 - 846
