Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION: 2 An administrator needs to know which IP address corresponds to a MAC address. Which protocol will support this? A. DHCPB. DNSC. STPD. ARP
Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3 Which of the following is required to allow load balancing between three HSRP routers connected to the same LAN? A. A single HSRP group with one active router for the groupB. Three HSRP groups with one active router for all groupsC. Three HSRP groups, each with an active routerD. Two HSRP groups with one active router for both the groupsE. A single HSRP group with all three routers as active routers for the groupF. Two HSRP groups, each with an active router
Answer: C
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: You should configure three HSRP groups on all three routers and select an active router for each of the groups. You can create up to 256 (0 to 255) groups. Each router should be the active router for one of the three groups and the standby router for the remaining two groups. If you want to use HSRP on a Layer 3 switch, the switch ports must be one of the following: EtherChannel port Refers to a Layer 3 switch port used for EtherChannel Routed port Refers to a Layer 3 port on a switch used for routing and for inter-VLAN routing Switch virtual interface (SVI) Refers to a Layer 2 switch port used for inter-VLAN routing Routed ports are the physical Layer 3 interfaces that allow you to configure a switch as a router. The no switchport command allows the port to be used purely as a Layer 3 port. SVIs are Layer 3 logical interfaces of a switch that allow you to enable inter-VLAN routing on Layer 3 switches. An SVI is configured as a VLAN interface and has at least one physical interface assigned to the VLANs. Creating a single HSRP group with all three routers as active routers for the group is incorrect. An HSRP group cannot have multiple active routers; it can have only one active router at a time. Creating a single HSRP group with one active router for the group is incorrect because it does not allow load balancing between the three routers. All traffic will be passed through the active router. Creating two HSRP groups with an active router each is incorrect because it only allows load balancing between two of the routers and not three of them. Creating two HSRP groups with one active router for both groups, or three HSRP groups with one active router for all groups, is incorrect. Doing so does not enable load balancing on all three routers. Only the active router will be used for traffic forwarding.
