NEW QUESTION: 1 Which statement about TippingPoint IPSs is true? A. They are deployed in an HP 5400 or 8200 zl switch and managed through HP Network Immunity Manager. B. They receive updates from DV Labs, which identifies more vulnerabilities than all other security experts combined. C. They provide flow inspection for Layers 1 through 5. D. They are designed to provide network protection at the perimeter. Answer: B Explanation: Another aspect of HP DV Labs that particularly impressed Mobinil (a HP customer) was the Zero Day Initiative program that DV Labs operates. ZDI is a so-called "vulnerability bounty program" that pays researchers money to share their discovered vulnerabilities with HP. While the aim of the program is to promote responsible vulnerability disclosure, an important byproduct of the initiative is that we get protection in the TippingPoint IPS for zero day vulnerabilities way before anyone else in the market. Industry research has shown that HP DV Labs finds 8-to-10 more vulnerabilities than other vendors. Having this level of protection in a security product is particularly impressive when looking at the ways that attackers are exploiting undisclosed vulnerabilities. Note: Each week DV Labs, our internal research group, releases a new DV that provides customers with protection against the latest vulnerabilities and network exploits. We've always taken a Virtual Patch approach to writing these signatures, so rather than wait for the exploits, we proactively write the signature to protect the vulnerability that the exploit is using. This means that we offer protection very early on in the threat lifecycle, and don't need to release new or modified signatures every time a new exploit emerges Note 2: The HP Digital Vaccine Labs (DV Labs) is a recognized leader in vulnerability discovery, analysis and protection. The team includes industry-recognized security researchers and developers who apply cutting-edge engineering, reverse engineering and analysis techniques to create comprehensive protection for enterprise business systems. NEW QUESTION: 2 A 57-year-old woman is recently widowed. She states, "I will never be able to learn how to manage the finances. My husband did all of that." Select the nurse's response that could help raise the client's self-esteem. A. "Why don't you take a class in basic finance from the local college?" B. "You should have insisted your husband teach you about the finances." C. "You are strong and will learn how to manage your finances after awhile." D. "You feel inadequate because you have never learned to balance a checkbook." Answer: C Explanation: The nurse can raise the client's self-esteem by communicating confidence the client can participate in actively finding solutions to the problem. The nurse also conveys the client is a worthwhile person by listening and accepting the client's feelings and praising the client for seeking assistance. Psychosocial Integrity
