NEW QUESTION: 1 Finance and operating leases differ in that the lesser:
A. Finances the transaction through the leased asset only under a finance lease.
B. Obtains use of the asset only under a finance lease.
C. Is using the lease as a source of financing only under an operating lease.
D. Makes rent payments that are actually installment payments constituting a payment of both principal and interest only under a finance lease.
Answer: A
Explanation: A lease is a rental or sub-purchase arrangement between a lesser the owner or seller of the property) and a lesser the renter or purchaser). The issue in all leases is whether the risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred from the lesser to the lessee. If so, the lease should be accounted for as a sale-purchase, i.e., a finance lease. If the risks and rewards of ownership have not transferred, the lease is a rental arrangement and is called an operating lease. In effect, the lesser provides financing for an installment purchase, and the lessee's payments include both principal and interest components.
