NEW QUESTION: 1You are designing a distributed application. The application must store a small amount of information that is shared across all users and does not change frequently. You need to configure the application to meet the requirements. Which server-side state management options will achieve the goal? Each correct answer presents a complete solution. Choose all that apply. A. Application state B. Profile properties C. Session state D. Database support Answer: A,D Explanation: A: SQL Database provides a relational database management system for Windows Azure and is based on SQL Server technology. With a SQL Database instance, you can easily provision and deploy relational database solutions to the cloud, and take advantage of a distributed data center that provides enterprise-class availability, scalability, and security with the benefits of built-in data protection and self-healing. D: Application state is a data repository available to all classes in an ASP.NET application. Application state is stored in memory on the server and is faster than storing and retrieving information in a database. Unlike session state, which is specific to a single user session, application state applies to all users and sessions. Therefore, application state is a useful place to store small amounts of often-used data that does not change from one user to another.
