NEW QUESTION: 1Which statement correctly describes enabling BPDU guard on an access port that is also enabled for PortFast?A. BPDU guard is configured only globally and the BPDU filter is required for port-level configuration.B. The access port ignores any received BPDU.C. Upon startup, the port transmits 10 BPDUs. If the port receives a BPDU, PortFast and BPDU guard are disabled on that port and it assumes normal STP operation.D. If the port receives a BPDU, it is placed into the error-disable state.Answer: D*Explanation:When enabled on a port, BPDU Guard shuts down a port that receives a BPDU. When configured globally, BPDU Guard is only effective on ports in the operational PortFast state. In a valid configuration, PortFast Layer 2 LAN interfaces do not receive BPDUs. Reception of a BPDU by a PortFast Layer 2 LAN interface signals an invalid configuration, such as connection of an unauthorized device. BPDU Guard provides a secure response to invalid configurations, because the administrator must manually put the Layer 2 LAN interface back in service. With release 12.1(11b)E, BPDU Guard can also be configured at the interface level. When configured at the interface level, BPDU Guard shuts the port down as soon as the port receives a BPDU, regardless of the PortFast configuration.
