NEW QUESTION: 3Is the correct statement about TCP proxy and TCP reverse source probing?A. The principle of the TCP proxy is that the device acts as a proxy for the TCP connection between the two ends. When one end initiates the connection, it must first complete the TCP 3 handshake with the device.B. TCP reverse source detection detects the source IP by sending a Reset packet.C. Use TCP proxy mode for attack defense, you must enable the state detection mechanism.D. TCP proxy and TCP reverse source probe can prevent SYN FloodAnswer: A,C,D
Explanation:ExplanationNote: TCP reverse source detection principle, when the device receives a SYN message, it will detect the existence of the source IP. The TCP reverse source detects the SYN-ACK sequence number that is sent incorrectly. If the source exists, it will send an RST message to request a three-way handshake. Because the reverse source detection mechanism is not affected by the successful establishment of the session table, it is recommended to use the reverse source detection technology to defend against SYN flood attacks. If you use TCP proxy attack defense, you must enable the state detection mechanism.

NEW QUESTION: 4What is a feature of SCKM?A. The decryption can be performed by the key on the server or on the client.B. The signing can be performed on the client or on the server.C. The keypair passphrase matches the WDRT passphrase.D. The keypair is controlled only by the client.Answer: A
