NEW QUESTION: 1 Which security model uses division of operations into different parts and requires different users to perform each part? A. Non-interference model B. Biba model C. Bell-LaPadula model D. Clark-Wilson model Answer: D Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: The Clark-Wilson security model uses division of operations into different parts and requires different users to perform each part. This is known as Separation of Duties. The Clark-Wilson model outlines how to incorporate separation of duties into the architecture of an application. If a customer needs to withdraw over $10,000, the application may require a supervisor to log in and authenticate this transaction. This is a countermeasure against potential fraudulent activities. The model provides the rules that the developers must follow to properly implement and enforce separation of duties through software procedures. Incorrect Answers: A: The Bell-LaPadula model does not use division of operations into different parts and require different users to perform each part. B: The Biba model does not use division of operations into different parts and require different users to perform each part. D: The Non-interference model does not use division of operations into different parts and require different users to perform each part. References: Harris, Shon, All In One CISSP Exam Guide, 6th Edition, McGraw-Hill, New York, 2013, p. 376
