NEW QUESTION: 3 Your client is planning to implement Fusion Applications for Financials, HCM, and CRM. Per the client's requirements, certain CRM functionalities are needed to support the person data management in CRM and Financials. You are asked to explore and evaluate suitable options of deployment. Identify the three possible deployment options that could meet the client's requirements. A. suite-based installation with single common instance for all the pillars and separate data model B. pillar-based installation with separate instance and separate data model C. pillar-based installation with single common instance for all pillars and separate data model D. suite-based installation with single common instance for all the pillars and unified data model E. hybrid environment with separate instance and separate data model that can be integrated with other Oracle/non Oracle systems Answer: C, D, E Explanation: Note 1: Oracle Fusion Applications are organized in "pillars." A pillar is a standalone subset of Oracle Fusion Applications, for example Customer Relationship Management (CRM). A pillar can include multiple "families" or sub-groups. The pillar structure allows patching and upgrades to be performed at a granular level without impacting other pillars. For example, customers that want to upgrade their financials and supply chain management applications can do so without impacting the CRM applications. Note 2: Depending on business needs, some Oracle Applications customers may consider a pillar-based coexistence model such as using Oracle Fusion Human Capital Management with Oracle Financials.
