NEW QUESTION: 3 What Did the Speaker Learn from Alfonso? Alfonso I am not the first poet born to my family. We have painters and singers, actors and carpenters. I inherited my trade from my zio, Alfonso. Zio maybe was the tallest man in the village, he certainly was the wisest. He lost his voice to cigarettes before I was born, but still he roared with his hands, his eyes, with his brow, and his deafening smile. He worked the sea with my nonno fishing in silence among the grottoes so my father could learn to write and read and not speak like the guaglione, filled with curses and empty pockets. He would watch me write with wonder, I could hear him on the couch, he looked at the lines over my shoulder, tried to teach himself to read late in the soft Adriatic darkness. Wine-stained pages gave him away. But I learned to write from Zio - He didn't need words, still he taught me the language of silence, the way the sun can describe a shadow, a gesture can paint a moment, a scent could fill an entire village with words and color and sound, a perfect little grape tomato can be the most beautiful thing in the world, seen through the right eyes. - Marco A Annunziata (2002) Reprinted by permission of the author. In line 5, the speaker says, "I inherited my trade from my zio, Alfonso." What trade did the speaker inherit? A. carpentry B. fishing C. singing D. painting E. writing poetry Answer: E Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Line 1 states, "I am not the first poet in my family, and line 28 states, "But I learned to write from Zio." Thus, he learned to write poetry from Zio. There is no evidence that either of them paints, except through words and gestures (see lines 28-35), so choice a is incorrect. Zio's trade was fishing, but the speaker is not a fisherman, so b is incorrect. There is no evidence that he is a singer or carpenter, so choices d and e are incorrect.
