NEW QUESTION: 2The server administrator has noted that most servers have a lot of free disk space and low memory utilization. Which of the following statements will be correct if the server administrator migrates to a virtual server environment?A. Servers will encounter latency and lowered throughput issues.B. The administrator will not be able to add a test virtual environment in the data center.C. The administrator will need to deploy load balancing and clustering.D. The administrator may spend more on licensing but less on hardware and equipment.Answer: DExplanation: Migrating to a virtual server environment reduces cost by eliminating the need to purchase, manage, maintain and power physical machines. The fewer physical machines you have, the less money it costs. Incorrect Answers: A, C, D: Virtualization allows you to manage and maintain servers as discrete software components, rapidly create new servers from pre-defined and configured images, and reallocate resources to optimize performance and stability. Virtual servers are contained entirely as a software object, so you can easily and seamlessly migrate them to other physical hardware whenever necessary.
