NEW QUESTION: 1 Which of the following role carriers has to account for collecting data on risk and articulating risk? A. Business process owner B. Enterprise risk committee C. Chief information officer (CIO) D. Chief risk officer (CRO) E. Explanation: CRO is the individual who oversees all aspects of risk management across the enterprise. Chief risk officer has the main accountability for collecting data and articulating risk. If there is any fault in these processes then CRO should be answerable. Answer: D, E Explanation: is incorrect. Enterprise risk committee are the executives who are accountable for the enterprise level collaboration and consensus required to support enterprise risk management (ERM). They are to some extent responsible for articulating risk but are not accounted for it. They are neither responsible nor accounted for collecting data on risk. Answer: C is incorrect. CIO is the most senior official of the enterprise who is accountable for IT advocacy; aligning IT and business strategies; and planning, resourcing and managing the delivery of IT services and information and the deployment of associated human resources. CIO has some responsibility towards collecting data and articulating risk but is not accounted for them. Answer: B is incorrect. Business process owner is an individual responsible for identifying process requirements, approving process design and managing process performance. He/she is responsible for collecting data and articulating risk but is not accounted for them.

NEW QUESTION: 4 You administer all the deployments of Microsoft SQL Server 2012 in your company. You have two servers in the same data center that hosts your production database. You need to ensure that the database remains available if a catastrophic server failure or a disk failure occurs. You also need to maintain transactional consistency of the data across both servers. You need to achieve these goals without manual intervention. Which configuration should you use?

A. Two servers configured in a Windows Failover Cluster in the same data center
B. Two servers configured on the same subnet
C. SQL Server Availability Group configured in Synchronous-Commit Availability Mode
D. Two servers configured in the same data center
E. SQL Server Availability Group configured in Asynchronous-Commit Availability Mode
F. One server configured as an Active Secondary
G. Two servers configured in different data centers
H. SQL Server Availability Group configured in Synchronous-Commit Availability Mode
I. One server configured as an Active Secondary
J. Two servers configured in different data centers
K. SQL Server Availability Group configured in Asynchronous-Commit Availability Mode
L. Two servers configured in the same data center
M. A primary server configured to perform log-shipping every 10 minutes
N. A backup server configured as a warm standby
O. SQL Server that includes an application database configured to perform snapshot replication
P. SQL Server that includes an application database configured to perform transactional replication

Answer: B

Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Always On availability groups supports two availability modes- asynchronous-commit mode and synchronous-commit mode. Synchronous-commit mode emphasizes high availability over performance, at the cost of increased transaction latency.
