Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2If the System Administrator set a user to create only a certain record type, this user's ability to view other record types is affected.
A. True
B. False
Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3The security administrator notices a user logging into a corporate Unix server remotely as root. Which of the following actions should the administrator take?
A. Delete the root account
B. Ensure the root account has a strong password
C. Create a firewall rule to block SSH
D. Disable remote root logins
Answer: D
Explanation: Remote users log in to Unix or Linux servers by using SSH. Although SSH is secure, allowing remote access as root is a security risk. One of the biggest security holes you could open on a Unix or Linux server is to allow directly logging in as root through SSH, because any cracker can attempt to brute force your root password and potentially get access to your system if they can figure out your password. It's much better to have a separate account that you regularly use and simply sudo to root when necessary. You should disable root ssh access by editing /etc/ssh/sshd_config to contain:
PermitRootLogin no
