NEW QUESTION: 3 Which of the following is often the GREATEST challenge of distributed computing solutions? A. security B. usability C. scalability D. heterogeneity Answer: A
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: A distributed computing environment is dependent on a network to ensure interoperability. This increases the footprint of the system and increases the potential for attack. Incorrect Answers: A: A distributed computing environment is almost infinitely scalable as additional systems can just be added to the environment. C: The distributed computing environment has evolved to support heterogeneous systems early in its emergence. It is thus possible to have systems from different vendors in a distributed computing environment. D: The support for heterogeneous systems in a distributed computing environment reduces the problem of usability.
