NEW QUESTION: 2 You are designing a new Planning application. Which two requirements dictate multiple plan types in a single Planning application?A. Security is applied to the Entity dimension but can differ for users for accounts "sales" and "expenses".B. Data cannot be shared across the Organization dimension.C. Multiple currencies are required.D. Sales are planned by product and channel, and salary expenses are planned by position.E. You have decided to implement the Capital Expense planning module in addition to PSL budgeting.F. Currency rates must be kept in a separate database.Answer: D,E Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: C: When you define an entity member, you assign a plan type for which it is valid. If you do not assign a plan type to a member, that member's children do not have access to that plan type. If you move a member, and the new parent of that member is valid for different plan types, then the member remains valid only for the plan types it has in common with the new parent. Your organization may require that different entity members prepare different plans. For example, in your organization all entity members may submit expense plans, but entity members that are cost centers do not submit revenue plans. When you define entity members you specify the plan types for which they are valid. Because data forms are associated with plan types, this allows you to control which entity members can enter data for each plan type. E: You would need two plan type. To add a Capital Expense plan type to an existing application see Note below. Note: To add the Capital Asset Planning plan type to a Planning application: 1 In Performance Management Architect, select Navigate, then Administer, then Application Library. 2 In the Application Library, right-click the application to which you want to add the Capital Asset Planning plan type, select Initialize, then select Capital Asset or Workforce and Capital Asset if the application will use both plan types. 3 To confirm the initialization, click Yes.

NEW QUESTION: 4 You installed a new NetApp cluster running clustered Data ONTAP. There is a single Storage Virtual Machine (SVM) named esx1 on the cluster. A volume named esx_datastore1 is created in the SVM esx1. The name of the root volume for the esx1 SVM is esx1_rootvol. The default export policy was applied to the volume esx1_rootvol. You verified that the export policy applied to esx_datastore1 contains a single rule that allows all clients to mount the volume as read/write using any version of NFS. A Linux client attempts to NFS mount the volume and receives a Permission Denied error. In this scenario, what caused this error?
A. UNIX permissions for the volume esx1_rootvol are not set to read/write.
B. The volume esx_datastore1 has not been mounted into the namespace of the esx1 SVM.
C. NFS has not been configured on the SVM esx1.
D. The default export-policy does not have at least one rule to allow all clients read-only access.
Answer: D
