NEW QUESTION: 3You are using CloudFormation to launch an EC2 instance and then configure an application after the instance is launched. You need the stack creation of the ELB and Auto Scaling to wait until the EC2 instance is launched and configured properly. How do you do this?A. Use a CreationPolicy to wait for the creation of the other dependent resources >/B. Use the HoldCondition resource to hold the creation of the other dependent resourcesC. It is not possible for the stack creation to wait until one service is created and launchedD. Use the WaitCondition resource to hold the creation of the other dependent resourcesAnswer: A
Explanation:ExplanationWhen you provision an Amazon EC2 instance in an AWS Cloud

Formation stack, you might specify additional actions to configure the instance, such as install software packages or bootstrap applications. Normally, CloudFormation proceeds with stack creation after the instance has been successfully created. However, you can use a Creation Policy so that CloudFormation proceeds with stack creation only after your configuration actions are done. That way you'll know your applications are ready to go after stack creation succeeds. A Creation Policy instructs CloudFormation to wait on an instance until CloudFormation receives the specified number of signals. Option A is invalid because this is possible. Option B is invalid because this is used to make AWS CloudFormation pause the creation of a stack and wait for a signal before it continues to create the stack.
