NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com.You log on to a domain controller by using an account named Admin1. Admin1 is a member of the Domain Admins group.You view the properties of a group named Group1 as shown in the exhibit. (Click the Exhibit button.)Group1 is located in an organizational unit (OU) named OU1. You need to ensure that you can modify the Security settings of Group1 by using Active Directory Users and Computers.What should you do from Active Directory Users and Computers?A. Right-click OU1 and select Delegate ControlB. From the View menu, select Users, Contacts, Groups, and Computers as containers.C. From the View menu, select Advanced FeaturesD. Right-click contoso.com and select Delegate Control.Answer: CExplanation:From ADUC select view toolbar then select advanced features. When you open up the ADUC in a default installation of Active Directory, you are only presented with the basic containers. These basic containers include the only organizational unit (OU), which is the Domain Controllers OU, as well as the other containers such as Users and Computers. To see more in-depth containers, you need to configure the ADUC by going to the View option on the toolbar, then selecting Advanced Features. This will refresh the view within the ADUC and add some new containers. There are no hidden (or Advanced) OUs that will show up when you configure the ADUC in this way.

NEW QUESTION: 2A. Option DB. Option BC. Option CD. Option AAnswer: A,DExplanation:
<https://communities.netapp.com/servlet/JiveServlet/previewBody/4803-102-1-6405/tr-3548.pdf> It is important to remember that this is the case only when a complete site is lost. In the case of a failed controller at one of the sites, a normal cluster failover occurs. Due to the operation of SyncMirror, there is also added protection from multidrive or complete shelf failures. When a storage controller fails in an active-active configuration, the partner detects the failure and automatically (if enabled) performs a takeover of the data serving responsibilities from the failed controller. Part of this process relies on the surviving controller being able to read information from the disks on the failed controller. If this quorum of disks is not available, then automatic takeover won't be performed. In a MetroCluster configuration, manually executing a single command will allow a takeover to occur in spite of the lack of a quorum of disks. This "forced takeover" process breaks the mirrored relationships in order to bring the failed controller's volumes on line.forcetakeover -d is very dangerous. Not only can it cause data corruption, if not used carefully, it can also lead to a situation where both the node and its partner are operational (split brain). As such, it should only be used as a means of last resort when the takeover and forcetakeover commands are unsuccessful in achieving a takeover. The operator must ensure that the partner node does not become operational at any time while a node is in a takeover mode initiated by the use of this command. In conjunction with RAID mirroring, it can allow recovery from a disaster when the two nodes in the HA pair are located at two distant sites.
