NEW QUESTION: 1 You have an Azure subscription for used for testing and development purposes only. The subscription contains Azure virtual machines that unmanaged, standard hard disk drives (HDD). You need to recommend a recovery strategy for the virtual machines if an Azure region fails for a sustained period. The recovery time objective (RTO) can be up to seven days. The solution must minimize costs. What should you include in the recommendation?
A. Store the disks in a Standard_GRS storage account. If a disaster occurs, manually create the virtual machines by Azure Resource Manager templates.
B. Store the disks in a Standard_LRS storage account. Configure Azure site Recovery. If a failure occurs, initiate a manual failover.
C. Store the disks in a Standard_LRS storage account. If a disaster occurs, manually create the virtual machines by using Azure Resource Manager templates.
D. Store the disks in a Standard_GRS storage account. Configure Azure Recovery. If a failure occurs, initiate a manual failover.
Answer: D
Explanation: Geo-redundant storage (GRS) is designed to provide at least 99.99999999999999% (16 9's) durability of objects over a given year by replicating your data to a secondary region that is hundreds of miles away from the primary region. If your storage account has GRS enabled, then your data is durable even in the case of a complete regional outage or a disaster in which the primary region isn't recoverable. GRS replicates your data to another data center in a secondary region, but that data is available to be read only if Microsoft initiates a failover from the primary to secondary region.
