NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains an Active Directory forest named contoso.com. The forest contains a single domain. All domain controllers run Windows Server 2012 R2. The domain contains two domain controllers. The domain controllers are configured as shown in the following table. Active Directory Recycle Bin is enabled. You discover that a support technician accidentally removed 100 users from an Active Directory group named Group1 an hour ago. You need to restore the membership of Group1. What should you do?
A. Perform an authoritative restore.
B. Apply a virtual machine snapshot to VM1.
C. Recover the items by using Active Directory Recycle Bin.
D. Perform a non-authoritative restore.
Answer: A
Explanation: Authoritative restore allows the administrator to recover a domain controller, restore it to a specific point in time, and mark objects in Active Directory as being authoritative with respect to their replication partners. For example, you might need to perform an authoritative restore if an administrator inadvertently deletes an organizational unit containing a large number of users. If you restore the server from tape, the normal replication process would not restore the inadvertently deleted organizational unit. Authoritative restore allows you to mark the organizational unit as authoritative and force the replication process to restore it to all of the other domain controllers in the domain.
Incorrect: Not C: A nonauthoritative restore returns the domain controller to its state at the time of backup and then allows normal replication to overwrite that state with any changes that occurred after the backup was taken. After you restore the system state, the domain controller queries its replication partners. The replication partners replicate any changes to the restored domain controller, ensuring that the domain controller has an accurate and updated copy of the Active Directory database.

NEW QUESTION: 4To take advantage of cloud agility and burst computing capability, ABC Automobiles have extended their data center to a Virtual Cloud Network (VCN). In Oracle Cloud Infrastructure's (OCI) us-phoenix-1 region. They have several members in their Cloud Operations (CloudOps) team that need I access the OCI management console. The security administrator does not want to create new IAM users and credentials that would then need to be distributed to each CloudOps member. Which option will help solution architect meet the needs for CloudOps? A. Use an existing SAML 2.0 compliant identity provider (IdP) to grant CloudOps members federated access to OCI Console via the OCI single sign-on (SSO) endpoint. B. Use on-premises SAML 2.0 compliant identity provider (IdP) to retrieve an AuthToken to enable CloudOps members to sign in to the OCI Console. C. Use OAuth 2.0 to retrieve temporary credentials to enable your CloudOps members to sign in to the OCI Console. D. Use Web Identity Federation to retrieve an AuthToken to enable CloudOps members to sign in to the OCI Console. Answer: A

Explanation: Oracle Cloud Infrastructure supports federation with Oracle Identity Cloud Service, and Microsoft Active Directory (via Active Directory Federation Services (AD FS)), Microsoft Azure Active Directory, Okta, and other identity providers that supports the Security Assertion Markup Language (SAML) 2.0 protocol. Federated users choose which identity provider to use for sign-in, and then they're redirected to that identity provider's sign-in experience for authentication. After entering their login and password, they are authenticated by the IdP and redirected back to the Oracle Cloud Infrastructure Console. By this way, you don't need to create IAM user in OCI console for each operation user and can use their credentials in identity provider and user SSO to login to OCI console. For instructions for federating with other identity providers, see the following: Federating with SAML 2.0 Identity Providers
