NEW QUESTION: 1 A client diagnosed with Borderline Personality Disorder frequently attempts to burn herself. The best intervention to facilitate behavior change is: A. removing all items from the environment that the client could use to harm herself. B. constantly observing the client to prevent self-harm. C. enlisting the client in defining and describing harmful behaviors. D. checking on the client every 15 minutes to ensure she is not engaging in harmful behavior.

Answer: C Explanation: The challenge when intervening with clients who might harm themselves is to maintain client safety while facilitating behavior change. Enlisting the client to identify the triggers for self-harm makes the client an active participant in treatment. Nurses are less judgmental when they understand the source of the behavior and can be sensitive to client feelings. Psychosocial Integrity
