D. 全部で 10 Gbps になります
Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2 You have an Azure subscription named Subscription1. Subscription1 contains the resources in the following table:
VNet1 is in RG1. VNet2 is in RG2. There is no connectivity between VNet1 and VNet2. An administrator named Admin1 creates an Azure virtual machine VM1 in RG1. VM1 uses a disk named Disk1 and connects to VNet1. Admin1 then installs a custom application in VM1. You need to move the custom application to VNet2. The solution must minimize administrative effort. Which two actions should you perform? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area.
NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.
Answer: Explanation: Explanation

NEW QUESTION: 3 Manually moving an entry from the SSL grey list to the white list on a SteelHead enables trust between which hosts?
A. Server-side SteelHead and server
B. Client-side SteelHead and server-side SteelHead
C. Client PC and server-side SteelHead
D. Client-side SteelHead and server
Answer: B
Explanation: Explanation
The Riverbed SSL solution optimizes data transfers that are encrypted using SSL, provided that SteelHeads are deployed locally to both the client-side and server-side of the network.
Note: Secure Peering Using the Self-Signed Peer White, Gray, and Black Lists
You can use peering lists to configure peer certificates on SteelHeads running RiOS 5.0 or later. When SSL optimization is enabled, and an optimizable SSL connection is attempted across the SteelHeads, the remote peer is detected and its peering certificate is automatically populated into the self-signed peer gray list. The connection remains unoptimized because the remote peer is listed in the self-signed peer gray list. You can examine the peer certificate for authenticity and move any peer from the gray list to either the white list or the black list. If you trust the remote peer, move it into the self-signed peer white list to begin optimizing the SSL connection. If you do not trust the remote peer, move it into the self-signed peer black list to prevent the SSL connection from being optimized. References:
