NEW QUESTION: 1Secure customer use of an e-commerce application can BEST be accomplished through:A. data encryption.B. strong passwords.C. digital signatures.D. two-factor authentication.Answer: A*Explanation:ExplanationEncryption would be the preferred method of ensuring confidentiality in customer communications with an e-commerce application. Strong passwords, by themselves, would not be sufficient since the data could still be intercepted, while two-factor authentication would be impractical. Digital signatures would not provide a secure means of communication. In most business-to-customer (B-to-C) web applications, a digital signature is also not a practical solution.

NEW QUESTION: 2A. Option DB. Option AC. Option CD. Option BAnswer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3If a dataset contains rows with individual people and columns for year of birth, country, and income, how many of the columns are continuous and how many are categorical?A. 3 categoricalB. 3 continuousC. 2 continuous and 1 categoricalD. 1 continuous and 2 categoricalAnswer: C*Explanation:ExplanationThe columns can be grouped into two types-categorical and continuous columns:A column is called categorical if its value can only be one of the categories in a finite set. For example, the native country of a person (U.S., India, Japan, etc.) or the education level (high school, college, etc.) are categorical columns.A column is called continuous if its value can be any numerical value in a continuous range. For example, the capital gain of a person (e.g. $14,084) is a continuous column.Year of birth and income are continuous columns. Country is a categorical column.You could use bucketization to turn year of birth and/or income into categorical features, but the raw columns are continuous.
