(Select two.)A. native support for block and file servicesB. minimal downtime technology refreshC. ability to mix-and-match All flash and hybrid nodesD. non-disruptive technology refreshE. Support for FCoEAnswer: C,E

NEW QUESTION: 2What happens when you publish a goal?A. It is available to workers in the Shared Goals area of the My Goals page.B. It is available to workers in the Organization Goals area of the My Goals page.C. It is added to the competency library.D. It is added to the goal library for users to select.Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3Which of the following components of an all-in-one security appliance would MOST likely be configured in order to restrict access to peer-to-peer file sharing websites?A. URL filterB. Spam filterC. Malware inspectionD. Content inspectionAnswer: A
Explanation:The question asks how to prevent access to peer-to-peer file sharing websites. You access a website by browsing to a URL using a Web browser or peer-to-peer file sharing client software. A URL filter is used to block URLs (websites) to prevent users accessing the website. IncorrectAnswer:A: A spam filter is used for email. All inbound (and sometimes outbound) email is passed through the spam filter to detect spam emails. The spam emails are then discarded or tagged as potential spam according to the spam filter configuration. Spam filters do not prevent users accessing peer-to-peer file sharing websites.C: Content inspection is the process of inspecting the content of a web page as it is downloaded. The content can then be blocked if it doesn't comply with the company's web policy. Content-control software determines what content will be available or perhaps more often what content will be blocked. Content inspection does not prevent users accessing peer-to-peer file sharing websites (although it could block the content of the sites as it is downloaded).D: Malware inspection is the process of scanning a computer system for malware. Malware inspection does not prevent users accessing peer-to-peer file sharing websites.References:
