NEW QUESTION: 3 Which two statements about IPS signatures are true? (Choose two.) A. All of the built-in signatures are enabled by default. B. It is recommended not to retire a signature that is not being used because then it cannot be restored. C. It is possible to define custom signatures. D. Once the signature is removed from the sensing engine it cannot be restored. E. Tuned signatures are built-in signatures whose parameters are adjusted. Answer: C,E Explanation: If you want to create a custom signature that is similar to an existing signature, you can create a clone, or copy, of the signature. You can then edit the parameters to make the clone perform according to your requirements. For example, you might want to create a clone of a Cisco-defined signature to customize it to your needs. You might find this preferable to converting the Cisco signature to a Local or shared policy signature and directly editing its parameters. Reference:
