NEW QUESTION: 1 Which of the following append themselves to files as a protection against viruses?
A. Behavior blockers B. Cyclical redundancy checkers (CRCs) C. Active monitors D. Immunizers
Answer: D
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Immunizers defend against viruses by appending sections of themselves to files. They continuously check the file for changes and report changes as possible viral behavior. Behavior blockers focus on detecting potentially abnormal behavior, such as writing to the boot sector or the master boot record, or making changes to executable files. Cyclical redundancy checkers compute a binary number on a known virus-free program that is then stored in a database file. When that program is subsequently called to be executed, the checkers look for changes to the files, compare it to the database and report possible infection if changes have occurred. Active monitors interpret DOS and ROM basic input-output system (BIOS) calls, looking for virus-like actions.
