NEW QUESTION: 2What is the main component of Unified MPLS?A. The loopback prefixes from one IGP area are redistributed into BGP without changing the next hop.B. Confederations are used to provide scalability.C. The ABR is a BGP route reflector and sets next-hop to self for all reflected routes.D. Multiple IGPs in the network are used, where the loopback IP addresses of the PE routers are aggregated on the area border routers.Answer: C*Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Since the core and aggregation parts of the network are integrated and end-to-end LSPs are provided, the Unified MPLS solution is also referred to as "Seamless MPLS." New technologies or protocols are not used here, only MPLS, Label Distribution Protocol (LDP), IGP, and BGP. Since you do not want to distribute the loopback prefixes of the PE routers from one part of the network into another part, you need to carry the prefixes in BGP. The Internal Border Gateway Protocol (iBGP) is used in one network, so the next hop address of the prefixes is the loopback prefixes of the PE routers, which is not known by the IGP in the other parts of the network. This means that the next hop address cannot be used to recurse to an IGP prefix. The trick is to make the ABR routers Route Reflectors (RR) and set the next hop to self, even for the reflected iBGP prefixes. In order for this to work, a new knob is needed.Reference:
