NEW QUESTION: 2A. Option CB. Option DC. Option AD. Option BA*Answer: A*Explanation: Explanation Since the requirement is to have the least amount of downtime, the ideal way is to create a blue green deployment environment and then use the Swap URL feature to swap environments for the new deployment and then do the swap back, incase the deployment fails. The AWS Documentation mentions the following on the SWAP url feature of Elastic Beanstalk Because Elastic Beanstalk performs an in-place update when you update your application versions, your application may become unavailable to users for a short period of time. It is possible to avoid this downtime by performing a blue/green deployment, where you deploy the new version to a separate environment, and then swap CNAMCs of the two environments to redirect traffic to the new version instantly.
