NEW QUESTION: 1Ann, a software developer, has installed some code to reactivate her account one week after her account has been disabled. Which of the following is this an example of? (Select TWO).A. SpywareB. BackdoorC. BotnetD. RootkitE. Logic BombAnswer: B,E*Explanation:This is an example of both a logic bomb and a backdoor. The logic bomb is configured to 'go off' or activate one week after her account has been disabled. The reactivated account will provide a backdoor into the system. A logic bomb is a piece of code intentionally inserted into a software system that will set off a malicious function when specified conditions are met. For example, a programmer may hide a piece of code that starts deleting files should they ever be terminated from the company. Software that is inherently malicious, such as viruses and worms, often contain logic bombs that execute a certain payload at a pre-defined time or when some other condition is met. This technique can be used by a virus or worm to gain momentum and spread before being noticed. Some viruses attack their host systems on specific dates, such as Friday the 13th or April Fool's Day. Trojans that activate on certain dates are often called "time bombs". To be considered a logic bomb, the payload should be unwanted and unknown to the user of the software. As an example, trial programs with code that disables certain functionality after a set time are not normally regarded as logic bombs. A backdoor in a computer system (or cryptosystem or algorithm) is a method of bypassing normal authentication, securing unauthorized remote access to a computer, obtaining access to plaintext, and so on, while attempting to remain undetected. The backdoor may take the form of an installed program (e.g., Back Orifice) or may subvert the system through a rootkit. A backdoor in a login system might take the form of a hard coded user and password combination which gives access to the system.

NEW QUESTION: 2Selina wrote a LotusScript Web service method with the following structure:
Public Function lookupPersonInfo (personName As String, f As WS_FAULT) As PersonInfo ' do the lookup, return the information in our custom PersonInfo data type End Function
What is the purpose of the WS_FAULT parameter in the Function definition?A. It is a required parameter for any methods that do not contain error handling blocksB. It specifies that a SOAP Fault will be returned if an error occurs (otherwise, the client would expect an empty response in the case of an error)C. It allows the method to return a custom message if an error occurs in the codeD. It indicates that the incoming SOAP message should include 2 parameters: a "personName" string and an empty SOAP Fault objectAnswer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3Which layer private VLAN partition the broadcast domain?A. Layer 4B. Layer 2C. Layer 3D. Layer 1Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 4Which option would you consider first to decrease the wait event immediately?A. Option BB. Option EC. Option CD. Option DE. Option AAnswer: D*Explanation: Automatic segment space management (ASSM) is a simpler and more efficient way of managing space within a segment. It completely eliminates any need to specify and tune the pctused, freelists, and freelist groups storage parameters for schema objects created in the tablespace. If any of these attributes are specified, they are ignored.*Oracle introduced Automatic Segment Storage Management (ASSM) as a replacement for traditional freelists management which used one-way linked-lists to manage free blocks with tables and indexes. ASSM is commonly called "bitmap freelists" because that is how Oracle implement the internal data structures for free block management.Note:*Buffer busy waits are most commonly associated with segment header contention outside the data buffer pool (db_cache_size, etc.). *The most common remedies for high buffer busy waits include database writer (DBWR) contention tuning, adding freelists (or ASSM), and adding missing indexes.
