Too high a temperature can cause components to overheat and turn off; too low a temperature can cause the components to work more slowly. If the humidity is high, then corrosion of the computer parts can take place; if humidity is low, then static electricity can be introduced. This static electricity can short out devices and cause the loss of information. Because of this, the data center must have its own temperature and humidity controls, which are separate from the rest of the building.Incorrect Answers:B: Electro-plating is not caused by low humidity. Therefore, this answer is incorrect.C: Energy-plating is not caused by low humidity. Therefore, this answer is incorrect.D: Element-plating is not caused by low humidity.
