NEW QUESTION: 4Which of the following process ensures that extracted data are ready for analysis?A. Data gatheringB. Data validationC. Data analysisD. Data accessAnswer: B
Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Data validation ensures that extracted data are ready for analysis. One objective is to perform data quality tests to ensure data are valid complete and free of errors. This may also involve making data from different sources suitable for comparative analysis.Incorrect Answers:A: Analysis of data involves simple set of steps or complex combination of commands and other functionality. Data analysis is designed in such a way to achieve the stated objectives from the project plan. Although this may be applicable to any monitoring activity, it would be beneficial to consider transferability and scalability. This may include robust documentation, use of software development standards and naming conventions.C: Data gathering is the process of collecting data on risk to be monitored, prepare a detailed plan and define the project's scope. In the case of a monitoring project, this step should involve process owners, data owners, system custodians and other process stakeholders.D: In the data access process, management identifies which data are available and how they can be acquired in a format that can be used for analysis. There are two options for data extraction:Extracting data directly from the source systems after system owner approvalReceiving data extracts from the system custodian (IT) after system owner approval
