NEW QUESTION: 1 A Data Scientist is evaluating different binary classification models. A false positive result is 5 times more expensive (from a business perspective) than a false negative result. The models should be evaluated based on the following criteria: 1) Must have a recall rate of at least 80% 2) Must have a false positive rate of 10% or less 3) Must minimize business costs After creating each binary classification model, the Data Scientist generates the corresponding confusion matrix. Which confusion matrix represents the model that satisfies the requirements?
A. TN = 91, FP = 9 FN = 22, TP = 78 B. TN = 99, FP = 1 FN = 21, TP = 79 C. TN = 96, FP = 4 FN = 10, TP = 90 D. TN = 98, FP = 2 FN = 18, TP = 82
Answer: D
Explanation: The following calculations are required:
TP = True Positive
FP = False Positive
FN = False Negative
TN = True Negative
Recall = $TP / (TP + FN)$
False Positive Rate (FPR) = $FP / (FP + TN)$
Cost = $5 * FP + FN$
Options C and D have a recall greater than 80% and an FPR less than 10%, but D is the most cost effective.

NEW QUESTION: 2 A customer wants to clean up the HP SIM database, but must keep events from the last 180 days complying with regulations. How can you delete events older than 180 days to keep the database clean and comply with regulations at the same time?
A. Change the retention policy in the database level to delete all entries older than 180 days.
B. Configure an event retention policy to keep events from the last 180 days and delete the remaining events manually.
C. Create a collection to select events older than 180 days, and write a task to delete events on that collection.
D. Configure a custom command to use the database CLI to delete events older than 180 days.
Answer: C
Explanation: For every system that is discovered in HP SIM, an event is created that cannot be deleted (the Discovered System event) until the system is deleted. If you are managing 1,500 systems, this means that 1,500 events are automatically generated before any SNMP traps are received. These Discovered System events can be cleared so that they can be easily filtered out. This can be performed automatically by creating a collection to filter all events older than X days, then creating a task to delete events from that collection.
