NEW QUESTION: 2To mitigate the risk of fire in your new data center, you plan to implement a heat-activated fire detector.Your requirement is to have the earliest warning possible of a fire outbreak. Which type of sensor would you select and where would you place it?A. Variable heat sensor installed above the suspended ceilingB. Fixed-temperature sensor installed in the air ventC. Rate-of-rise temperature sensor installed below the raised floorsD. Rate-of-rise temperature sensor installed on the side wallAnswer: C*Explanation:Explanation/Reference: Explanation:Heat-activated detectors provide the earliest warning possible of a fire outbreak. They should be placed below the raised floors as this is where the cabling most likely to cause an electrical fire is.Heat-activated detectors can be configured to sound an alarm either when a predefined temperature (fixed temperature) is reached or when the temperature increases over a period of time (rate-of-rise). Rate-of- rise temperature sensors usually provide a quicker warning than fixed-temperature sensors because they are more sensitive, but they can also cause more false alarms. The sensors can either be spaced uniformly throughout a facility, or implemented in a line type of installation, which is operated by a heat- sensitive cable.It is not enough to have these fire and smoke detectors installed in a facility; they must be installed in the right places. Detectors should be installed both on and above suspended ceilings and raised floors, because companies run many types of wires in both places that could start an electrical fire. No one would know about the fire until it broke through the floor or dropped ceiling if detectors were not placed in these areas.Incorrect Answers:A: A side wall is not the best location for the sensor. If cabling under a raised floor starts a fire, it will be some time before the wall mounted heat sensor is triggered. Therefore, this answer is incorrect.B: A variable heat sensor is not the best type of sensor to provide the earliest warning possible of a fire outbreak. Therefore, this answer is incorrect. C: Fixed-temperature sensors are triggered when a defined temperature is reached. This is not the best type of sensor to provide the earliest warning possible of a fire outbreak. The air vent is also not the best location for the sensor. Therefore, this answer is incorrect. References: Harris, Shon, All In One CISSP Exam Guide, 6th Edition, McGraw-Hill, 2013, p. 470
