A. Data/Telecomm/IS facilities
B. Facilities security
C. Marketing/Public relations
D. IS Operations
Answer: A
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: One of the most important elements of the disaster recovery plan is the selection of alternate processing sites to be used when the primary sites are unavailable. To get the alternate site operational it would need an information technology system similar to equal to the system running on the primary. This would include telecommunication facilities such as internet access. We would also need the data from the primary site to get the alternate site up and running.
Incorrect Answers: A: Marketing/Public relations are not the primary concern. Most important is to get an alternate processing site running.
C: At a disaster the Information Systems would be disrupted. To get the information systems up and running again we would need an alternate processing site, which requires the data, telecomm, and information systems facilities.
D: Facility security relations are not the primary concern. Most important is to get an alternate processing site running.
