NEW QUESTION: 1 Which statement about Cisco Express Forwarding is true? A. It uses a fast cache that is maintained in a router data plane. B. It maintains two tables in the data plane the FIB and adjacency table. C. The CPU of a router becomes directly involved with packet-switching decisions. D. It makes forwarding decisions by a process that is scheduled through the IOS scheduler. Answer: B
Explanation: Cisco Express Forwarding (CEF) provides the ability to switch packets through a device in a very quick and efficient way while also keeping the load on the router's processor low. CEF is made up of two different main components: the Forwarding Information Base (FIB) and the Adjacency Table. These are automatically updated at the same time as the routing table. The Forwarding Information Base (FIB) contains destination reachability information as well as next hop information. This information is then used by the router to make forwarding decisions. The FIB allows for very efficient and easy lookups. The adjacency table is tasked with maintaining the layer 2 next-hop information for the FIB. Note: A fast cache is only used when fast switching is enabled while CEF is disabled.

What should you do? A. Set the VMs to execute a custom script extension. B. Create a new GPO to execute the scripts as a logon script. C. Create a SetupComplete.cmd batch file to call the scripts after the VM starts. D. Create a new virtual hard disk (VHD) that contains the scripts. E. Load the scripts to a common file share accessible by the VMs. Answer: A
Explanation: Custom Script Extension can automatically download scripts and files from Azure Storage and launch a PowerShell script on the VM which in turn can install additional software components. And just like with any other VM Extension, this can be added during VM creation or after the VM has been running.
