NEW QUESTION: 2 Which of the following are elements of 'group risk': I. Market risk II. Intra-group exposures III. Reputational contagion IV. Complex group structures A. I and II B. II, III and IV C. I and IV D. II and III Answer: B Explanation: Explanation The term 'group risk' has been defined in the FSA document 08/24 on stress testing as the risk that a firm may be adversely affected by an occurrence (financial or non-financial) in another group entity or an occurrence that affects the group as a whole. These risks may occur through: - reputational contagion, - financial contagion, - leveraging, - double or multiple gearing, - concentrations and large exposures (particularly intra-group). Thus, the insurance sector may be considered a group, and a firm may suffer just because another group firm has had losses or reputational issues. The FSA statement goes on to identify some elements of group risk as follows: - intra-group exposures (credit or operational exposures through outsourcing or service arrangements, as well as more standard business exposures); - concentration risks (from credit, market or insurance risks which could put a strain on capital resources across entities simultaneously); - contagion (reputational damage, operational or financial pressures); and - complex group structures (with dependencies, complex split of responsibilities and accountabilities). Therefore Choice 'a' is the correct answer and the rest of the choices are incorrect.
