NEW QUESTION: 1 Which of the following audit techniques ordinarily would provide an auditor with the least assurance about the operating effectiveness of an internal control activity?
A. Preparation of system flowcharts.
B. Inspection of documents and reports.
C. Inquiry of client personnel.
D. Observation of client personnel.
Answer: A
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Choice "D" is correct. Preparation of system flowcharts may aid in the auditor's understanding of internal control, but would not indicate whether controls were actually operating as designed. Choices "A", "B", and "C" are incorrect. Inquiry, inspection, observation (and reperformance) are all tests that may be used to evaluate the operating effectiveness of a control.

NEW QUESTION: 2 In regards to Terraform state file, select all the statements below which are correct: (select four)
A. storing state remotely can provide better security
B. Terraform Cloud always encrypts state at rest
C. using the mask feature, you can instruct Terraform to mask sensitive data in the state file
D. when using local state, the state file is stored in plain-text
E. the state file is always encrypted at rest
F. the Terraform state can contain sensitive data, therefore the state file should be protected from unauthorized access
Answer: A,B,D,F
Explanation: Terraform state can contain sensitive data, depending on the resources in use and your definition of "sensitive." The state contains resource IDs and all resource attributes. For resources such as databases, this may contain initial passwords. When using local state, state is stored in plain-text JSON files. If you manage any sensitive data with Terraform (like database passwords, user passwords, or private keys), treat the state itself as sensitive data. Storing Terraform state remotely can provide better security. As of Terraform 0.9, Terraform does not persist state to the local disk when remote state is in use, and some backends can be configured to encrypt the state data at rest.
