Answer: C Explanation: EMR allows you the flexibility of choosing optimal instance types to fit different applications. For example, Spark caches data in memory for faster processing, so it is best to use instances with more memory (such as the R3 instance family). Also, EMR's ability to use Amazon EC2 Spot capacity can dramatically reduce the cost of training and retraining ML models. Most of the time, the Spot market price for larger instances such as the r3.4xl is around 10%-20% of the on-demand price.
