Network RAID10+1: Data is striped and mirrored across three or more storage systems. Three copies of the Data in a volume configured with Network RAID10+1 are available and preserved in the event that any two storage systems become unavailable. Best applications for Network RAID10+1 are those that require data availability even if two storage systems in a cluster become unavailable.Network RAID10+2: Data is striped and mirrored across four or more storage systems. Four copies of the Data in a volume configured with Network RAID10+2 is preserved in the event that any three storage systems become unavailable. Network RAID10+2 are designed for Multi-Site SANs to preserve data in the event of an entire site becoming unavailable. Best use for Network RAID10+2 volumes is for data that must be synchronously replicated between two locations and must remain fully redundant in the case of an entire site failure.

NEW QUESTION: 2Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution. After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen. You are modeling data by using Microsoft Power BI. Part of the data model is a large Microsoft SQL Server table named Order that has more than 100 million records. During the development process, you need to import a sample of the data from the Order table. Solution: From Power Query Editor, you import the table and then add a filter step to the query. Does this meet the goal? A. Yes B. No

Answer: B Explanation: Explanation The filter is applied after the data is imported. Instead add a WHERE clause to the SQL statement. Reference:
