NEW QUESTION: 3You are designing an Azure application that stores data.You have the following requirements:* The data storage system must support storing more than 500 GB of data.* Data retrieval must be possible from a large number of parallel threads.* Threads must not block each other.You need to recommend an approach for storing data.What should you recommend?A. Azure Notification HubsB. A single SQL database in AzureC. Azure Queue storageD. Azure Table storageAnswer: DExplanation:* Azure Table Storage can be useful for applications that must store large amounts of nonrelational data, and need additional structure for that data. Tables offer key-based access to unschematized data at a low cost for applications with simplified data-access patterns. While Azure Table Storage stores structured data without schemas, it does not provide any way to represent relationships between the data.* As a solution architect/developer, consider using Azure Table Storage when: / Your application stores and retrieves large data sets and does not have complex relationships that require server-side joins, secondary indexes, or complex server-side logic. / You need to achieve a high level of scaling without having to manually shard your dataset.
