Model D the most recent addition to the range is making a large loss after the price of a major component rose dramatically. Model A is only just breaking now too as costs have risen. The only two products making profit are Models B and C. These two require the least about of machine hours so this makes sense. However, the management have a few reservations. They cannot understand how B is so profitable. It requires several more stages of production than the other models and a whole day longer to be customised by an expert. Select the correct answer from the list below that can help to explain this situation. A. ABC would show that only a small amount of our overheads are based on machine hours. B. ABC could have shown that some products are selling poorly and should be discontinued. C. ABC would show that if overheads are shared equally that model B would be less profitable. Answer: A
