NEW QUESTION: 3Your network contains an Active Directory forest named contoso.com. The forest contains a single domain. All domain controllers run Windows Server 2012.The domain contains two domain controllers. The domain controllers are configured as shown in the following table.You discover that a support technician accidentally removed 100 users from an Active Directory group named Group1 an hour ago.You need to restore the membership of Group1.What should you do?A. Perform an authoritative restore.B. Perform tombstone reanimation.C. Apply a virtual machine snapshot to VM1.D. Perform a non-authoritative restore.Answer: AExplanation:Authoritative restore allows the administrator to recover a domain controller, restore it to a specific point in time, and mark objects in Active Directory as being authoritative with respect to their replication partners. For example, you might need to perform an authoritative restore if an administrator inadvertently deletes an organizational unit containing a large number of users. If you restore the server from tape, the normal replication process would not restore the inadvertently deleted organizational unit. Authoritative restore allows you to mark the organizational unit as authoritative and force the replication process to restore it to all of the other domain controllers in the domain.Incorrect: Not C: A nonauthoritative restore returns the domain controller to its state at the time of backup and then allows normal replication to overwrite that state with any changes that occurred after the backup was taken. After you restore the system state, the domain controller queries its replication partners. The replication partners replicate any changes to the restored domain controller, ensuring that the domain controller has an accurate and updated copy of the Active Directory database.
