Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:Software metering in Configuration Manager 2012 allows you to monitor and collect software usage data on Configuration Manager 2012 clients.The collection of this usage data is based on software metering rules that can be configured by the administrator in the Configuration Manager console, or by the automatic generation of rules based on usage data collected by Configuration Manager 2012 inventory. These rules are evaluated by the software metering client agent on Configuration Manager 2012 client computers, which collects metering data and reports this back to the site database. The software metering client agent continues to collect usage data when there is no connection to the Configuration Manager 2012 site and will report this back when the connection is re-established. Software metering data held on the site database is summarized on a specified schedule and propagated up through the site hierarchy to any parent site. The central Configuration Manager 2012 site database will therefore contain usage data from all client computers within the site hierarchy.
