NEW QUESTION: 2 What is the result when a flume event occurs for the following single node configuration?
A. The event is logged to the screen.
B. The event is sent out on port 44444.
C. The event is written to memory.
D. The event output is not defined in this section.
E. The event is written to the netcat process.
Answer: A
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: This configuration defines a single agent named a1. a1 has a source that listens for data on port 44444, a channel that buffers event data in memory, and a sink that logs event data to the console. Note: A sink stores the data into centralized stores like HBase and HDFS. It consumes the data (events) from the channels and delivers it to the destination. The destination of the sink might be another agent or the central stores. A source is the component of an Agent which receives data from the data generators and transfers it to one or more channels in the form of Flume events. Incorrect Answers: D: port 4444 is part of the source, not the sink. References: <https://flume.apache.org/FlumeUserGuide.html>
