Answer: B
Explanation:You can publish your own metrics to CloudWatch using the AWS CLI or an API. You can view statistical graphs of your published metrics with the AWS Management Console.CloudWatch stores data about a metric as a series of data points. Each data point has an associated time stamp. You can even publish an aggregated set of data points called a statistic set. If you have custom metrics specific to your application, you can give a breakdown to the management on the exact issue. Option A won't be sufficient to provide better insights. Option B is an overhead when you can make the application publish custom metrics. Option D is invalid because just the ELB metrics will not give the entire picture. For more information on custom metrics, please refer to the below document link: from AWS
