NEW QUESTION: 2Note: This question is part of a series of questions that use the same answer choices. An answer choice may be correct for more than one question in the series. Each question is independent of the other questions in this series. Information and details provided in a question apply only to that question.You are developing an application to track customer sales. You create tables to support the application.You need to create a database object that meets the following data entry requirements:What should you create?A. table-valued function B. user-defined procedureC. DML triggerD. DDL triggerE. CLR procedureF. extended procedure G. scalar-valued functionAnswer: BExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:References: <https://msdn.microsoft.com/en-us/library/ms345075.aspx>

NEW QUESTION: 3You are the project manager of GHT project. You are performing cost and benefit analysis of control. You come across the result that costs of specific controls exceed the benefits of mitigating a given risk. What is the BEST action would you choose in this scenario?A. The enterprise may apply the appropriate control anyway.B. The enterprise should adopt corrective control.C. The enterprise should exploit the risk.D. The enterprise may choose to accept the risk rather than incur the cost of mitigation.Answer: DExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:If the costs of specific controls or countermeasures (control overhead) exceed the benefits of mitigating a given risk the enterprise may choose to accept the risk rather than incur the cost of mitigation. This is done according to the principle of proportionality described in: Generally accepted security systems principles (GASSP)

Generally accepted information security principles (GAISP)
Incorrect Answers: A: When the cost of specific controls exceed the benefits of mitigating a given risk, then controls are not applied, rather risk is being accepted. B: As the cost of control exceeds the benefits of mitigating a given risk, hence no control should be applied. Corrective control is a type of control and hence it should not be adopted. D: The risk is being exploited when there is an opportunity, i.e., the risk is positive. But here in this case, negative risk exists as it needs mitigation. So, exploitation cannot be done.
