NEW QUESTION: 1Which issue does CAS signaling on a T1 circuit create?A. Signaling bits are added to the signaling stream to create extended super frames.B. A signaling bit is subtracted from every sixth frame to carry signaling information.C. An extra signaling bit is added to the sixth frame to carry signaling information.D. Signaling bits are subtracted from each frame, which causes a significant loss of voice quality.Answer: B*Explanation:Each T1 channel carries a sequence of frames. These frames consist of 192 bits and an additional bit designated as the framing bit, for a total of 193 bits per frame. Super Frame (SF) groups twelve of these 193 bit frames together and designates the framing bits of the even numbered frames as signaling bits. CAS looks specifically at every sixth frame for the timeslot's or channel's associated signaling information.

NEW QUESTION: 2Scenario: A Citrix Engineer has configured the Signature file with new patterns and log strings and uploaded the file to Application Firewall. However, after the upload, the Signature rules are NOT implemented.What can the engineer modify to implement Signature rules?A. The Signature upgrade will take effect only after a restart.B. The NetScaler version should be upgraded before upgrading the signatures.C. The Signature update URL should have an older version than the one on Application Firewall.D. The new Signature file should have new ID and version number.Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3A developer implements an asynchronous implementation for calculating insurance proposals. The input data for the calculations is made available on a single message queue. Two types of insurance proposals will be calculated: car and life. Message with data for other insurance types are posted on the queue but should be left on the queue by this implementation.Which statement is true?A. The developer can use a messageSelector to receive only the car and life data message if the JMS body contains selectable data.B. The developer can implement a push-back mechanism if the message is of the wrong type.C. The developer will NOT succeed because all messages will be consumed from the queue.D. The developer can use a messageSelector to receive only the car and life data message if the header contains properties to make selection.Answer: DExplanation:A JMS message selector allows a client to specify, by header field references and property references, the messages it is interested in. Only messages whose header and property values match the selector are delivered. What it means for a message not to be delivered depends on the MessageConsumer being used (see QueueReceiver and TopicSubscriber).Reference:javax.jms Interface Message
