NEW QUESTION: 4You configure a sharepoint server 2010 SP1. The farm contains a single search serviceapplication that has two index servers. The search index contains 3 million documents that reside on the sharepoint farm and 2 million documents that reside on a network file server named fileserver1. You attach a content database that contains 8 million documents. You make sites from the database accessible on your farm. You grant Read permissions to anonymous users to read all the content on these sites. You need to improve performance of the search. You also need to ensure that users can search the contents of the entire Sharepoint farm from a single SearchCenter Site. What should you do?A. Add a second Search service application and distribute the indexed content across the two index servers.B. Add a new crawl rule and specify the path where the rule will apply. In the Crawl Configuration section, select the Exclude all items in the path option.C. Add a new federated search location. In the Restrictions and Credentials Information section select the No restriction: All sites can use this location option.D. Add a new search scope at the service application level. Add a scope rule that uses the Web Address rule type.E. Add a new content source and specify its start address. Add a crawl schedule and initiate a full crawl.F. Add a new search scope at the site administration level. Add a scope rule that uses the Content Source rule type.G. Add a new index partition and distribute the existing index across the two index servers.H. Add a new crawl rule and specify the path where the rule will apply. In the Crawl Configuration section, select the Include all items in the path option.Answer: GExplanation:Explanation/Reference: In Microsoft SharePoint Server 2010 Search, index partitions are groups of query components, each of which holds a subset of the full text index and which return search results to the query originator. Each index partition is associated with a specific property database containing metadata associated with a specific set of crawled content. You can distribute the load of query servicing by adding index partitions to a Search Service Application and placing their query components on different farm servers. You can decide which servers in a farm will service queries by creating a query component on that server. If you want to balance the load of servicing queries across multiple farm servers, add query components to an index partition and associate them with the servers you want to service queries. See Add or remove a query component for more information. <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/ee805955.aspx>
